Foreword

A walk on the risky side might have been the designation given by a Maryland State student as he traversed his campus in 1961. Every few steps he took, it seemed, brought him within a stumble of an excavation, a cornerstone, a scaffolding, a skyline of bulldozers and toolhouses. Gone were the gracious symmetry and shining order that have been our enduring pride. "How shall we live with this?" wailed the women of Murphy Hall as they beheld the wide gashes of earth and ungainly building blocks obscuring their favorite view.

But wait: Does not the grateful earth receive that cornerstone from hands that build knowledge? On this site Maryland men and women be given buildings wherein to grow in knowledge and wisdom? Seventy-five years ago our founders dreamed a spacious campus of towering walls, knowing these would come in the fullness of time. As we celebrate our diamond anniversary, Maryland State students also celebrate the hundredth year of the American land grant college and are proud to be a part of the building idea that transcended empty spaces and temporary discomforts while the modern land grant college took shape.

If one must stumble into an excavation or behold a scaffolding that mars his customary view, let him be grateful that on this chosen site we fortunate few stand heirs of men and women who dreamed of mansions of knowledge still to come. Here and there in the pages of THE HAWK, 1961, are reminders that our college is a-building still on their dreams.

The Student Council

Student Government, under popular and able Phipps, went through a year of success, taking note of the proposal for a new and more efficient dining hall service soon to be effected, keeping the recreation lounge open for several hours each day, supervising collections for and purchase of a television set for the lounge. Tactful and efficient Irma Polk took over the presidency of the Women's Council, made her administration exceptionally helpful. Student Counselors were headed by Foster recently returned from a summer in Africa with renewed zeal to serve, found much to do to help freshmen in their adjustment. Men's Senate, with durable Phipps at the helm, sent word that in 1961 Maryland men reported they had been well served.

"Food of love," dreams, joy, hope, friendship: Such a diet was served up in '61 by the talented people on this page and the next. Here is one of the largest choirs in the history of Maryland State, trained by popular and talented Dr. Frank Carroll. Most memorable event of year was the Music Department's presentation of Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," with an Amahl from the Princeton Boys' Choir, a Mother from the Philadelphia Academy of Music, an orchestra from various points on the Eastern Shore, but Kings and shepherds from our own student body. Dr. Carroll led the orchestra, Visiting Professor Walter Anderson (Head of Music Department, Antioch College), directed the choral music, Mrs. Marian Cuyjet trained and directed the ballet corps.

Scenes

From "Amahl and The Night Visitors"

Amahl offers crutch he no longer needs as gift for the Holy Child.

Mother (Miss Frances Gooding of the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music), Amahl (Michael Flaharty of the Columbus Boys Choir School), Kings (St. George Crosse, '64, Lawrence Cundiff, '62, Shepard Thompson, '65), and Page (David Anderson of Yellow Springs, Ohio, son of Professor Walter Anderson) take a well-deserved curtain call.

Mother bids Amahl farewell as he accepts Kings' invitation to accompany him to visit the Holy Child.

The Kings sing: "He walks! He walks!"

The Mighty Hawks: Seated, First Row: Finger, Price, Taylor, (Captain), Spence, Thompson, I. Brown, Holmes (Captain), Gadsden, Lewis. Second Row: Clemones, Weaver, Ford, Pringle, Mitchell, Ward, Suggs, Borders, Wilson, Goodwin. Third Row: Davidson, Parham, Davis, Finn, Mercer, Ross, Thomas, Beauford, H. Brown, Purkett. Fourth Row: Joyner, P. Thomas, D. Wilson, Johnson, Parker, Lane, Seabrook, Griffin, Williams.

With a 4-2-1 record this season the Hawks felt pretty good about the over-all record. In Hawk circles for years to come the favorite question will be: "Where was the ball?"

S. Jackson displays his Brother Tony's winning form as he drives and banks in a 2-pointer.

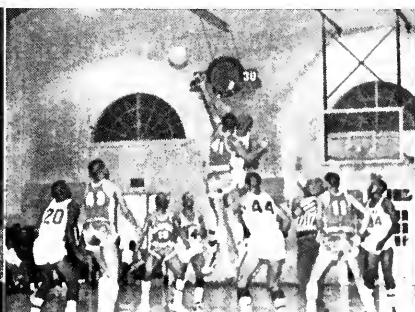

Watch it, Mapp; let it fall!

"Chinka" scores again with his bullet jumper.

The big "Tap-Off" against the Pirates of Hampton.

Wally Beauford drives against Norfolk State.

Jackson's push upsets opponents.

Again the Hawks score!

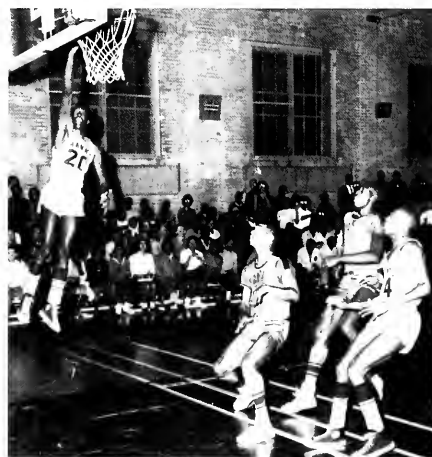

Heads up and keep your eyes on the ball, young people!

Again Jackson's brilliant efforts send the Hawks ahead.

A smiling Smith hits pay dirt.

Someone stop him before he scores!

HAWKS break ice.

Two closer to victory.

The daring young Mapp floats with the greatest of ease.

THE BASKETBALL STORY IN SUM

Outstanding opening event of the season was the coming of Coach Nate Taylor's five tall freshmen from New York. Eating, sleeping, talking, but most of all playing basketball, they radiated enthusiasm and drive, and our Hawks ended a highly successful season with an 18-2 record. As we say good bye to All-CIAA Jesse Williams, playing his last season, we say thanks to a mighty Hawk whose skill, determination, and brilliant team work were great gifts to the team.

All-Star Hawks Charlie Mays, Al Santio, Russ Rogers, practice in preparation for the oncoming season.

All-Star sprinter Charles Mays gives baton to Jim Phipps at Queens Iona Relays. At this meet Maryland State's "Miraculous Eight" captured the meet crown. The Hawks were victorious in the 440, 880, and 1-mile relays, Hop-Step-Jump, Broad Jump, 120 High Hurdles. The Hawks were the toast of New York.

The NAIA District 31 Meet at Trenton, N. J. Again the Hawks were victorious and received invitation to the National Championship. Top Right, National Collegiate Champion at Penn Relays (1960) Ed Bush wins in the Hop-Step-Jump. Bottom Right, sprinter-broad jumper Jim Phipps wins in the 220-yard dash. Below, sprinter-broad jumper Mays wins again in the 100-yard dash. Also Russ Rogers was victorious in the 220-yard dash and 120-yard hurdles.

At Quantico Relays shot putter and discus man Al Santio shows his form in his specialty.

For the first time in man's memory the heavens opened and drenched Homecoming alumni. Loyal fans unfurled umbrellas, braved pneumonia weather to cheer the Hawks up and down a muddy field to a 0-0 tie with North Carolina. Weather did not dampen Homecoming spirits, however. What Hawk could be downhearted with the vision of a radiant Ivy Jean Carter, Miss Maryland State of 1961, before him? Here she prepares for her coronation assisted by ex-Miss Maryland State Lois Kelly, and Irma Polk, Women's Council President.

"Oh, isn't she lovely?" "How beautiful!" were the cries as Miss Maryland State made her regal way to her throne.

Student Council President James Phipps, a proud man at this moment, crowns a radiant Ivy Jean.

Miss Maryland State and Her Court.

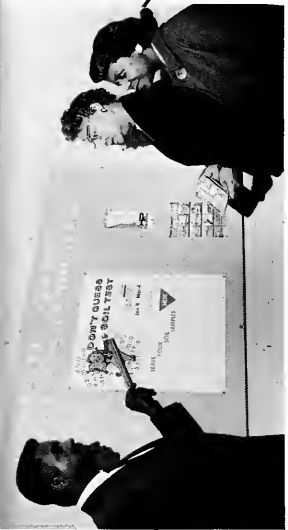

In the golden jubilee year of her Alma Mater. Miss Maryland State reigns happily.

IVY JEAN CARTER, MISS MARYLAND STATE 1961

Winsome and petite, with a fragile daintiness and Fragonard beauty, Ivy Jean Carter is everyone's ideal Miss Maryland State. She is a music major, a senior who plans to teach, an Honor Roll member (four years), a leader in a half dozen worthwhile organizations. Keeping busy, winning friends, staying on the honor roll, looking beautiful: These are just a few of the many talents of our '61 Miss MSC.

Home Economics as an area of the land-grant movement used to mean only cooking and sewing. These gracious ladies, having tea in their Home Management apartment, emphasize modern phases of Home Ec, such as gracious living. They are: Cora Boulware, Julia Brown, Dr. Cecelia Humphrey, Mrs. Grace Morton, Monya Cephas, and Sylvia Riggs.

Gracious living again: Freshmen are "at home" to new Home Economics majors. Vernetta Easley pours for mothers, friends, and sisters of new girls.

Informal get-together in the Department gives majors a chance to meet and become acquainted.

Modern sewing skills begin with scientific study of textiles. Freshmen study threads of cotton under microscope.

Home Ec Teacher Pynette Sharp (MSC grad) instructs her class in pattern selection.

Cooking skills include learning to de-bone a ham: Laura Jones, Vernetta Easley, Sylvia Riggs do operation.

Baking skills are practiced by one of few male majors, Sylvester White.

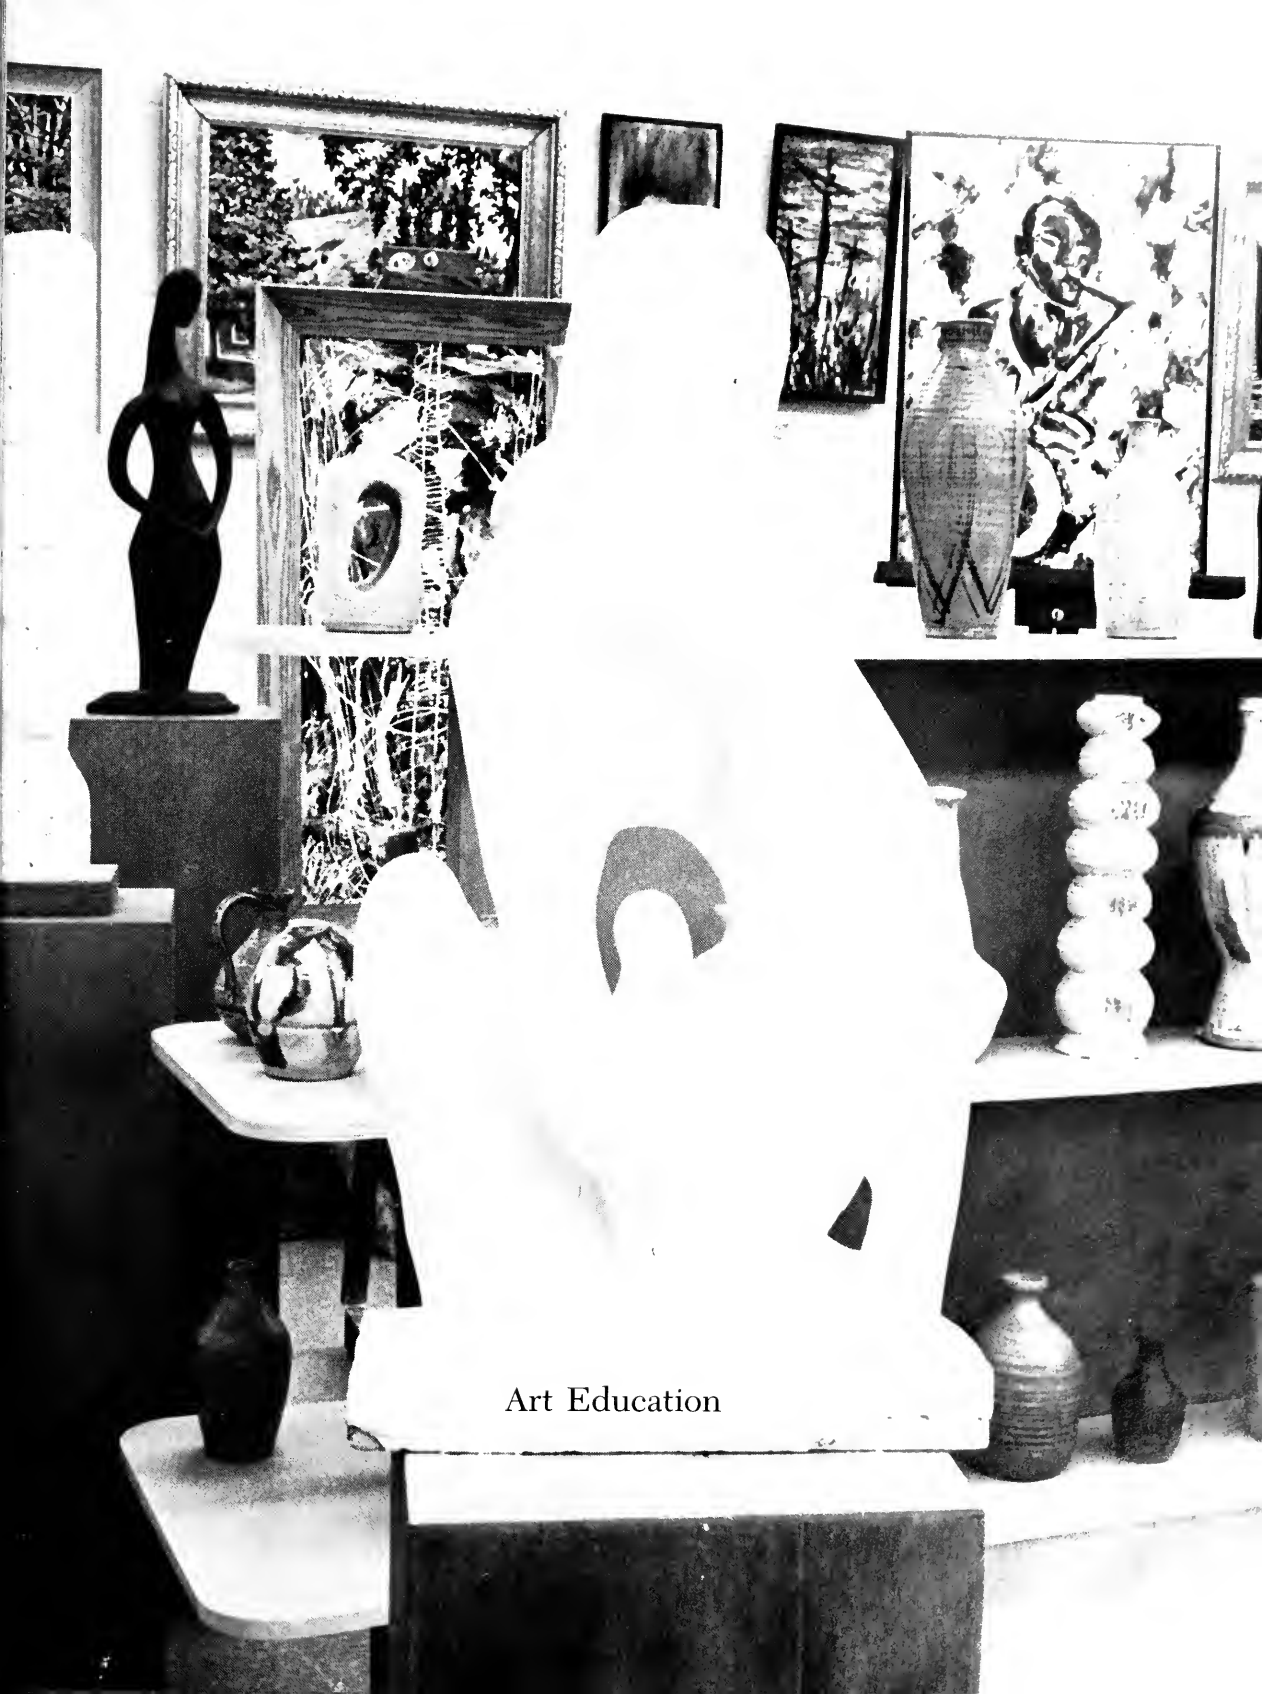

Professor Devenia Wallace and Patricia Ellis overlook a critical analysis. Bakers were: Ferguson, Kennedy, Mackall, Doswell, Holliday, McClain, Lyons, Stanley.

Child care being an important phase of modern Home Economics study, class executed projects Toys for Children.

Photographed with the staff of the Home Ec Department are a number of graduates in a variety of fields: Seated (First Row): Cephas, Home Demonstration Agent; Mathews, Social Worker; Stewart, Dietitian; Goods, Teacher; Hairston, Teacher. Second Row: Boulware, Dietitian; Stansbury, Housewife; Clark, Teacher; Fowler, Dietitian; Riggs, Teacher. Standing: Upshur; Hull, Dietitian; Mrs. Wallace; Miss Elps; Mrs. Morton; Miss Howard; Dr. Humphrey; Britton, Teacher; Wood, Dietitian.

HAWK STAFFERS

Art Editor Earnest Satchell says that he has sculptured (right) and painted (left) Hawk-to-End-Hawks.

Sports Editor F. Thompson may be pondering a Science Club Prexy's problems.

Assistant Sports Editor C. Thomas inspects work of Cousin Calvin in lay-out. All in the family.

It is possible that Staff Correspondents Carolyn Thompson and Bernice Washington are not seeing eye to eye on a Hawk problem and must send each other notes about it.

Lay-Out Editor R. Ford wonders whether three years of football and air science prepare one for his chores.

That's Lay-Out Editor C. Marcus insisting dummy sheets aren't large enough.

But Lay-Out Editor R. McCullough, with resignation of experience, tackles jobs of all sizes.

Senior Photographer B. Williams sallies forth to capture whatever is worth capturing for Hawk immortality.

Another dedicated Photographer, S. J. B. Harris atop Campus Jet photographing himself.

Dedicated Advisor Qualls may or may not have made special trip to Virgin Islands to ask Caine Mutiny author Herman Wouk how to make sure HAWK would be all-time best seller.

Senior Photographer L. Wickes delighted with many successes over New York Madison Square Garden photos of our Corner. Makes outjumping Ralph Boston.
